MAKING PLANS FOR A SUCCESSFUL GOSPEL MEETING

Plan To Attend Each Service

This is of utmost importance. I cannot stress enough the need for all of us to be present at each of the services. The community will be informed of our meeting in various ways. Some will be visiting from other congregations in the area. Some who are visiting may belong to a denomination in the area. Still others may visit who have never been associated with any religious group. What will they see? Will they see an active body of believers who are striving to do God's will? Will they see a group of Christians who love the Lord with all of their heart, soul, and strength? What will they see? God expects His children to first give themselves to His cause (2 Cor. 8:5). The question is, will you be here?

Plan To Bring A Friend With You

Once you have determined to be present during the meeting, it is important to remember the great commission. One way to carry out this command is to invite your friends, neighbors, and family members to hear the gospel preached. Sometimes, even those who are reluctant to come with you, will make exceptions for a special occasion such as a meeting. If possible, get them to ride with you. This serves several purposes: 1. It makes it more difficult for either of you to change your mind about coming, 2. It provides an opportunity for the person to ask questions which he or she might have been reluctant to ask during the meeting, and 3. It provides an opportunity for the non-Christian to get to know you better. I read an article which said that the church has practiced
